Patrick's Ponderings "Holy Happy Days"

Like many of you, I feel like I just finished with Halloween and then Thanksgiving. Now Hanukah, Christmas, Kwanza, the New Year are all just ahead. I sometimes get an image in my mind with these holidays as series of hurdles which we leap in rapid succession as we sprint down the last two months of the year. We then find ourselves in January, trying to "normalize" our schedules, and reconcile our accounts, with a feeling like a marathon runner who is gasping for air, trying to walk it off, and simply glad to have survived the gauntlet once again.

Yet I am caught on the word "holiday" itself. "Holiday" was originally "holy day." Holy days are those we set aside to devote ourselves to engaging with and celebrating particular aspects of God/dess, or the Holy. By doing this we step outside the normal space and time of our daily rounds to gain a unique perspective on our lives and our existence together. It is an opportunity to reorient ourselves to ourselves, to each other and to God/dess, the Holy.

Traditionally, holy days and holidays were intentional and structured so that we have a sense of being carried in a particular direction and delivered on the opposite shore. But in our current age holidays are more commonly defined by what they are not. They are not work, they are not school, or whatever the usual might be. When defined by what they are dedicated to, they are about shopping and buying, such as Black Friday and Cyber Monday. These shopping days are treated as more important than almost any events of the year. Whereas, holidays are set aside as "important" and even as "essential" to our personal and communal life. They are the pinnacle of the "holy happy days" of shopping and consumption that are supposed to ease our troubled brows and make the world a better place.

An Eastern proverb warns, "Be careful what gods you worship, lest you become like them." And Unitarian Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote, "That which dominates our imaginations and our thoughts will determine our lives, and character. Therefore, it behooves us to be careful what we worship, for what we are worshipping we are becoming." So what we think of as "important" or "holy" can become to us a god, and that has an impact on us whether we like it or not, and even if we are atheists.

"Why should we live in such a hurry and waste of life?"* The purpose of religious communities, traditions, celebrations, and gatherings is to give us the rudders, compasses and companions for the journey. In this way we may be better able to experience the holiday season not as a terrifying free fall from routine, or as pilgrimages to the temples of retail consumption. The ways we experience and describe the underlying reality of our lives in turn affects our lives and the lives of those around us. If we experience God/dess as selfish, materialistic, demanding and jealous, then that holds implications about our world and how we should live in it. If our experience and image of the Holy is all loving, embracing and forgiving, that understanding will have a different set of implications for us and our lives, and the world.

Real "holy days" prepare us for the journeys of discovery and renewal. So, let's pause in our "hurry and waste of life," shopping and consuming, and our flurry of doing and take some time to be present to what is Holy; to what is important and what is ultimately meaningful. Let us engage this season, and all others, not with a need to consume time, "to get through the holidays," but with an appreciation for the insights and renewals such times offer us. In this way we honor ourselves, each other, and the time we are given, truly making the "happy days" into "Holy days."

See you in church! Blessings, Patrick

Presidents Column

Dear Community Church Member,

My wife, Kimberly, and I welcomed our daughter, Adelaide Grace, into the world in the wee hours of November 2. Kimberly and Adelaide are both well! Thanks so much for your love and support during this time. I'm also pleased to report that, while challenging and time- and energy-consuming, my full-time graduate work in the SMU Perkins School of Theology is going swimmingly. I have some wonderful colleagues and professors, and the work is fascinating.

In light of these two big, recent changes and responsibilities in my life, I regret to inform you that I must resign as President of the Community Church Board of Trustees, effective after the congregational meeting on November 19. This was a difficult decision for me to make, but I feel like it is in both Community Church's best interest and in my family's best interest.

Community Church's greatest asset is its people. I appreciate the trust and the opportunities for growth they have granted me. I have faith in the 2017-2018 Board of Trustees and in those who will assume the president's responsibilities.

Sincerely,

Zack Hughes

What's New in the Community Garden?

By spending time in Community Harvest Garden you will see so much more than the lush and lovely plants we tend. Generosity lives in our garden. Stories, experience, seeds, tools and plants pass between us. Fragrances, flavors, vibrant colors, wildlife, laughter, the warmth of the sun – there are so many reasons to come to the garden. You'll find gardeners full of hope who flow with the weather, who are flexible, always learning, and proactive. You'll see evidence of planning ahead so seeds and plants are planted at the proper time to flourish. You are invited to join us! January 2018 is our plot adoption window. For more information, contact Deb Bliss at harvest@communityuuchurch.com.

Hunger Initiative

God's Pantry

God's Pantry is busy working on their Holiday Baskets to be distributed to local families before Thanksgiving and before Christmas. Each basket contains a turkey, all the standard accompaniments, plus meals for the rest of the holiday. Many clients are not able to work on holiday weekends and the children are not in school to take advantage of the free meals there.

Our church will kick off the Fourth Annual Toy Drive to support the young children of the families receiving the holiday baskets. The drive will begin on 11/19 and all gifts are due back to the church by 12/13. They will then be delivered to the Pantry to be matched with the family baskets for Christmas. This year we have 103 children on our holiday tree.

The teaching team trained together in July 2017 to offer this course at Community UU.

Rev. Jennifer Innis, Interim DRE

One expression of this month's theme of Gold is in the celebration of Chalice. Chalice is a uniquely UU holiday dreamed up by religious educator Daylene Marshall in 2005. Never heard of it? Not surprising as Chalice is still not widely known or celebrated. But, the number of congregations who observe the holiday is growing.

So, what is Chalice and when it is celebrated? Chalice is a week long holiday, during which we honor and celebrate our seven Unitarian Universalist principles. Those who celebrate Chalice spend each day reflecting on one principle—putting it into practice through their words and deeds. The celebration kicks-off at home on the first Monday in December, and usually ends with a special service the following Sunday. Each night of Chalice, a chalice is lit and homemade gifts may be given. There are even several Chalice songs which could be sung—find them on YouTube!

At the UU Church of Ventura California, where the congregation has been celebrating Chalice for several years, congregants have reported that they've given charitable donations, volunteered, and reconciled with family members on different days of Chalice. However, Chalice does not need to be such a huge undertaking. Marshall has a word of advice for families who might stress about adding Chalice to other December holidays. She says, "Don't make Chalice into another holiday obligation. People don't have to do hard things for it. They can send a card to someone, or stand up for someone on the playground." She adds, "I've let [Chalice] take on a life of its own. It can either be a serious spiritual exercise or a fun thing to do. All holidays evolve through the people who celebrate them. I don't want too much ownership; I just put the idea out and I'm happy to let it become what it will."

This year Community UU will have a Chalice experience in the worship for all ages on November 26. There also will be materials for individuals and families to take home that day.

See the UU World article: <https://www.uuworld.org/articles/chalice-gains-adherents>.

Also, for worship this month, on December 10 there will be an all ages Christmas pageant. If you would like to be an angel, a ruler, or even baby Jesus, see me. Costumes and props will be available that morning. Come at 9:15 a.m. for a quick rehearsal and to claim a role. On December 24, the all ages worship will be pajama-friendly as we share the Christmas spirit.

Jennifer

October Financial Report

Finance Report by Cindy Hadden Treasurer

The October financial summary for our operating accounts is listed below. The cumulative Net Income gap has gone up a little to $12k, still well above budget. Pledges are mostly being paid on time, which is very helpful, and a few people are paying a little more than they initially pledged, which is very helpful to alleviate our predicted deficit at the end of the year. There are a few people who have fallen behind, but we have good hopes that they can catch up. We have started paying towards the UUA gift starting this month, instead of paying it all in January, which is what the original plan was, due to cash flow.

Looking ahead: In November we had the service auction. Since this is the October report, that is not yet reflected, but it is worth noting we did not meet our target of $17K. Looking forward a little further, historically the holiday months, and just after that, the beginning of the New Year are lean months for the church. Please remember the different ways you can help our church, without it costing you any money, through Amazon Smile, Kroger community rewards, etc. (see the box to the right).
