OUR VISION

We will become a dynamic and nurturing religious community that celebrates our human diversity, supports lifelong spiritual growth, and acts for compassion and justice in the larger community.

“Love Will Guide Us”

As chance would have it, our own’s church pledge drive overlapped this year with that of KERA, the local NPR affiliate, and there’s undoubtedly some overlap in our memberships as well. In each case, some folks choose to give as “sustaining” members.

When we talk about sustaining our church this time of year, yes, we’re primarily referring to financial sustenance, but let’s take a moment to consider what sustains us personally as members, and how we sustain the life of the church in other ways. Especially during a time of transition when uncertainties and fears may tug at our sleeve demanding our attention, it’s important to remember our whys and hows of being here together at Community Church.

Why do we sustain this church? For some, it’s right in the name: community. A sense of belonging in a world that often rejects or suppresses those of us who feel like we’re different, in any number of ways. Finding home in a group of caring folks eager to know the new faces who visit, and who cherish the familiar ones who return. For others, it’s a venue to put their faith into action: feeding the hungry through God’s Pantry, mentoring local children at Barron Elementary, restoring communities in New Orleans, and advocating for social justice in Plano, in Austin, or in Washington, DC. There are as many reasons as there are members and friends of Community Church.

How can we sustain ourselves during this time? Remember what brought you here, and what you find here each time you visit. Is your mind stimulated by the readings, hymns, and homilies shared during service? Does your heart feel lighter, after you’ve had a quiet moment to reflect in the Sanctuary? Did you get to share a smile, a hug, or just some time with a friendly face you enjoy seeing? Maybe fellowship group activities give you something on the calendar to look forward to. Maybe it’s time to check out that group you’ve been meaning to, but just haven’t had the chance yet.

And of course, we can turn to our sources. Try comparing favorite hymns, readings, speakers, and sermon topics with others, and you might find a new or fresh perspective on words you thought you knew by heart. “Love Will Guide” us is one of mine- it’s a short hymn, but it packs a lot into its verses:

*Love will guide us, peace has tried us,
Hope inside us, will lead the way
On the road from greed to giving.
Love will guide us through the hard night.*

Patrick's Ponderings "Merciful Me"

Mothers' Day approaches again, and I am reminded of a Mothers' Day tradition very different from our now familiar hyper commercialized consumption of flowers, chocolate, dinners out and greeting cards. The Unitarian poet Julia Ward Howe, who wrote "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" as a war anthem for the Union Army, ten years later changed her mind.

Appalled by the slaughter of the Franco-Prussian War, she issued a proclamation calling for the establishment of Mothers' Day in the name of peace: "Arise, then, women of this day! Say firmly: "Our husbands shall not come to us reeking with carnage, for caresses and applause. Our sons shall not be taken from us to unlearn all that we have been able to teach them of charity, mercy, and patience." It is Julia Ward Howe's call to preserve charity, patience, and above all "mercy," that sings to me in this moment of ours.

Despite, or because of, its frequent use "mercy" can be a hard word to pin down, often depending on the situation it is used in. It can mean "compassion or forgiveness shown toward someone whom it is within one's power to punish or harm." It can also mean leniency, clemency, compassion, grace, pity, charity, forgiveness, quarter, humanity, etc..."

It is important to know most uses of these terms of compassion, especially "mercy" and "tolerance" that presume our ability, or our power to withhold them, or even to inflict harm instead. When we do harm or create intolerance, we are foregoing our being tolerant or merciful. Jesus's statement, "Blessed are the merciful" calls favor upon those who have power to do harm but refrain from it, and who instead offer tolerance and compassion.

It can be hard to be merciful to others when we are angry, or scared and anxious that our world is changing too fast or too much, or is in peril. Yet, the mercy we would have from others in our own vulnerable and dark times, is the same mercy we are called on to practice with others in their need. The same mercy we must have for ourselves.

When we are clouded with anxiety, guilt or fears, we feel cut off from our own deepest and best selves, what some call our Wise Mind, or Higher Self, or the "the better angels of our nature." Mercy on ourselves for whatever we are choosing to be cruel about creates a greater ripple of more health and compassion in the world than anything else we have the power to do. Changing our world to more readily "affirm and promote the inherent worth and dignity" of all, starts with changing how we see and treat ourselves as part of "the interconnected web of all existence." If we understand and remember our own power, "even in the days of (y)our powerlessness," then we can exercise mercy and justice for all. See you in church and remember your blooms to exchange in the Flower Communion on May 13th. Blessings, Patrick

As we say together each week, love is the spirit of this church- and so, let's allow it to guide us through our transitional "hard night" - and keep our dreams and hopes for the future of Community in front of us.

Alyssa Church

May 13 - Flower Communion/Mother's Day Service. Please join us in the important UU celebration of community and of those who "mother" us all. Remember to bring fresh flowers to share as an integral part of this service of remembrance and community.

May 20 - Our Annual Congregational Meeting will follow the worship service. Election will be held for some positions of the Church and the 2018-19 Budget will be voted on.

Presidents Column

“April showers bring May flowers” is an adage that I took literally as a child. I loved flowers so much, that I worried when we had a dry April. Now I realize that the saying means adversity can help us reach our potential. This is an exciting time in our Church as we have the opportunity to dream big and then build our dreams. We may have some uncomfortable moments in the next year as we examine what kind of church we want to become. Discomfort is a sign that we are doing the deep thinking and taking the actions that are necessary to grow as a faith community.

Community Church is officially in search for an Interim Minister and an Interim DRE.

By the time you read this we may already know who is interested in our Church. Our hope is to have these jobs filled by August. This is just the first step of a journey that Community UU will be on for the next few years. Our stewardship theme this year is “Come travel with us.” We sincerely need all our members to travel with us as we learn who we are going to be for the next decade. Come travel with us to build the Community Church that can be not only an oasis for those of us already here, but can be a beacon to those seekers and other people who need to find us. Let’s live up to our potential and be the Church that serves the people of this and the surrounding communities.

Blessings, Sarah

This I A Watershed Moment (Condensed)

The following is an excerpt from Tom Reid's stewardship moment, as shared during worship service on Sunday, April 22.

I believe this is a watershed moment for Unitarian Universalism and more specifically for Community Unitarian Universalist Church. We are at a crossroads right here in Plano. We will be experiencing a change in professional leadership in the pulpit and in our Religious Education program beginning this summer. This process often takes a year or two for any church. We also are experiencing some turnover in our lay leadership that must be replenished. And still we are faced with the aforementioned challenges in our community and our world simultaneously.

What resources and tools do we have at our command? There is a strong history of social justice work here at Community, meaningful and inspiring worship, charity and good works, public witness for important community and world issues. There are many strong and committed members of our Board of Trustees and our Social Action programs, as well as large RE program with learners eager to understand how UU principles can be used to impact the community and the world. There is a dynamic YRUU group with available energy and commitment. There is a strong Worship Committee with members you see every week as Worship Associates before you on Sundays. And there are always new and returning visitors curious about our message and seeking ways to make a difference in the world. There is talent and there are resources here.

For us, all works that will make an impact in our world start locally, right here. Think for a moment: to what values do you subscribe? What means something to you? Why are you here and not home in front of the TV or gardening?

Here's what makes the difference in our world: find something that is meaningful to you, put yourself to work on it, and give it your time, energy and resources. That's how we make things happen here at Community and in the world. So, will you pull the wagon from in front, push from behind or just ride in the coach?

Put your shoulder to the wheel with me and the rest of those here with you, and let's make something good happen.

UBARU Share the Plate Opportunity

The last Sunday of this month, May, we will Share the Plate with UBARU Camp & Retreat Center.

We are fortunate to have this oasis located in Texas Hill Country where the principles of our religion are practiced every day.

Your financial support is welcomed & appreciated to help us keep the facility in top condition

This facility is used mainly by our youth during summer camp season. We are probably the most economic youth camping opportunity in Texas. Opportunities for adults to participate in unique programs are also available

In addition to spending time with fellow Unitarians, this retreat center offers unique experiences located in a IDA Certified Dark Sky Park with an observatory. The night sky is beautiful & bright.

This year we will have an operating Ham Radio shack where kids can experience the "texting" of their great grand parents.

Please support us as you are capable. Thank you

For more information contact UBARU's assistant treasurer Bill Daffinee or see him Sunday morning with any questions.

Social Action News

What's New in the Community Garden?

Voracious voles and a “scare-owl” with a swivel-head! Thank you to Mike Owens for installing our umpteenth attempt to discourage diurnal field mice (voles) from eating our young plants. Our garden is managed organically so we always look for the least harmful way to respond to garden pests. After installing a screech owl box, removing habitat, adding 1/2” fencing, broadcasting castor oil pellets, and placing Babble Balls and jars of ammonia at tunnels, we are now trying scraping mulch from the entrance and planting daffodil bulb borders which are toxic to voles.

Plants that have survived despite the voles include: turnips, beets, kale, carrots, tomatoes, peppers, and eggplant. Harvests have been consistently rained out this season. We look forward to soon sharing our bounty with God’s Pantry once again. We still have a few plots available for adoption. Free mentoring is always an option. Contact Deb Bliss at harvest@communityuuchurch.org.

The Samaritan Inn

Again this year our church is helping sponsor a child from The Samaritan Inn to participate in summer camp activities. 33% of their residents are children. Going away to camp gives the children a opportunity to enjoy camp life and all of the adventures it offers away from their day to day issues.

Construction will enter the final stages this spring on two additional structures. One will be for general use to house new food service facilities, library, chapel, and offices. The second structure will be a three story residence building to house up to 225 individuals. What a good effort!

NTUUC consists of the thirteen Unitarian Universalist congregations of the North Texas area - the "North Texas Cluster." Its mission is to support, serve, and strengthen our member congregations.

NTUUC representatives from the 13 UU congregations meet quarterly. These NTUUC Board meetings provide a chance to share information and to learn from other congregations and their events, issues, and activities.

NTUUC supports its member congregations by:

Providing annual grants to its member congregations to promote growth and develop their facilities;

Providing professional staffing and office area to support NTUUC goals;

Funding social justice efforts involving multiple congregations.

Education: In keeping with its mission of strengthening congregations, NTUUC offers educational programs and conferences during the year. Our goal is to create better-prepared leaders and, thus, stronger institutions. NTUUC also co-sponsors programs with organizations with shared causes, especially in the area of social justice. The recent Anti-Racism conference, held at Horizon UU, is an example.

March Financial Report

Finance Report by Cindy Hadden Treasurer

The March financial summary for our operating accounts is listed below. The cumulative Net Income gap did not change much, it is $16.5K, still above budget. As predicted, current year pledged offering is still below budgeted (-$1K), a trend we predict for the rest of the fiscal year. Expenses actually came in below budget this month. If we do not have any unforeseen circumstances, we are carefully starting to think that we will end the year on a positive note.

Pledge Drive: Now is the time to turn in your pledge card, if you have not yet. A lot is happening at our church, but together we can make the changes positive ones. Let's travel together along this new path. You can pledge by going to the church website: <http://www.communityuuchurch.org> The Pledge Now button is on the left hand side, a little bit down the page.
